

HERRICK

GROWTH OF AN ESTABLISHED PRACTICE

In late 2020, Herrick, Feinstein LLP welcomed seven lawyers with a focus on cooperatives and condominiums to the firm, including partners, Bruce A. Cholst, Andrew B. Freedland, Deborah Koplovitz, Karol S. Robinson and Andrew J. Wagner, senior counsel, Peter I. Livingston and associate, Devin W. Ness. The team brings over 40 years of experience representing the boards of cooperatives and condominiums and management companies throughout the New York metropolitan area.

The group joins partner, Philip Tucker, and his team of capable and experienced attorneys in Herrick's existing Condominium and Cooperative Practice, which has previously established itself as one of the premier New York practices for developers, lenders and investors in all types of condominium and shared ownership transactions.

CONDOMINIUM AND COOPERATIVE LAW AT HERRICK

Herrick is active in all areas of condominium and cooperative law, particularly those requiring more sophisticated representation, including complex transactions, litigation and investigations by governmental agencies. Whether we're working with developers on mixed-use projects, counseling established lenders or those new to the New York market, or assisting cooperative boards, managing agents and tenant shareholders, Herrick understands all sides of these multifaceted transactions, and is able consolidate all the work under one roof - a real value add for Herrick clients.
